

4 Way Joy-- Free for the Sharing of it!

A Path to Freedom from Stress and Life Issues
Four Positive Principles -- 10 Transformative Steps

The Four Principles are:

Serenity, Love, Joy and the Truthful, Authentic Heart

1. We admit that we need a greater commitment to serious action for a better and more balanced life.
2. We admit the challenge is bigger than us and that we need help.
3. We come to believe in a greater connection than our own selves that can restore us to healthy thinking and action.
4. We ask for this help, humbly committing to this greater help, this power and pattern of living.
5. We take a full personal inventory of our gifts, graces, failings and baggage in life.
6. We share our inventory with our higher power and someone we trust, breaking old misconnections and patterns.
7. We become fully willing to let go of our defects one day at a time, humbly asking for help to remove them.
8. We commit to righting our wrongs, making amends to those we have harmed including ourselves as appropriate.

9. Stepping into a more serene, truthful, loving and joyful life, we practice these principles in daily stock- taking, mini- meditations, quick turn- around methods, accountability and prompt amends.

10. As soon as we're able we begin helping others to this new path of life so they too can enjoy more serenity, truthfulness, love and joy in their lives.

We do not do these steps alone-- we ask for, receive and use the help we need from others and from our own understanding of "something greater" than ourselves as we re-form the Foundation of our lives on a firmer grounding.

More about 4 Way Joy--

Transformation to Serenity, Truthfulness, Love and Joy

The Ten Steps

We use these steps to develop a stronger connection to the principles of a serene, truthful, loving and joyful life as the principal basis of our lives. From 1920 to now, they're a boon to millions recovered from being stuck in avoidance, due to or through their own faulty beliefs, workaholism, chronic stress or illness reactions, addictions, etc. and/or other escape behaviors.

This platform brings daily focus and action to the four principles of honesty, love, serenity and joy using clear steps, mini-meditations, quick turn- arounds, support and community. It changed brain patterns through daily transformative action. It's a powerful option especially when used with the more directly neuroscientific effects and instant rewards of the Joy 10X program.

Steps 1- 4 -- We come to believe in a greater connection than our own selves that can restore us to healthy thinking and action. That can be our community group or it can be a spiritual sort of "Some Greater Force" than us or the visible world. Some call it Spirit or God. Though we may have doubts in this endeavor, we soon see that the hoops we need to jump through are actually as roomy and vast as the great Forces of life. It can be as easy as saying, "I am now willing to be open for help". Then we are ready to move ahead with the rest of the steps. If we're not, we may just need to go slower we take what time we need, using logic, self- questioning and other tools to be sure our hearts and minds are fully with us in making a fair commitment to sincere forward action.

Step # 5-- Taking Stock Simply

Now at step 5, we begin the real work of developing stronger connection to honesty, unselfishness, purity and love as the primary basis of our lives. For the next few steps we will need some help but when we're committed to this new way of life, we often find that the help comes amazingly fast.

In Step 5 we begin taking a rough accounting of our true nature and our gifts, graces, and "baggage" through life.

We can do this in a couple of hours or spread it out over a few days. We keep it simple, just hitting the high points for we'll be continuing in this as the need arises throughout our time in this program. We use a particular format that helps us focus on our own issues and wrongs, mistaken beliefs, weakness and strengths, briefly writing out the mis-connections of our past, our relationships, our pent-up anger, harms done, etc. We're seeking the long view on our unhelpful attitudes, beliefs, fears, etc.

The Tool of Writing – Writing brings our issues directly into the light. We see it in front of us in black and white, so there's not much escaping involved. Writing is a valuable tool that helps us advance strongly. Often, previously unseen patterns emerge that are key to our mis-connections and to creating a better life. Seeing the truth of who we are and our choices often means we must write them out on paper. This action often powerfully redoubles our own understanding and thus our ability for change.

We write about our challenging issues, not to condemn but to clear them and move quickly on. And it works! We can use this tool at any point, for example:

People-- families, friends, partners, parents, authority figures, co-workers: anything we use as an escape or that's has been a problem or potential problem in our lives such as substances, money, drugs, food, sex, fantasy, etc.

Feelings: We write about our anger and resentments, fears, values, loves, etc.

A Higher Power:-- if we decide to use this valuable tool, we may need to look at our conceptions and their roots; our limitations and our choices today.

We write about our victories, strengths, weaknesses or failings, and the positives in our lives that we can rely on. If writing is a problem, we ask for help.

In Step 6 we share our personal inventory with someone we trust, opening to feedback, self-acceptance, forgiveness, and correction. This step in itself is freeing as too often we've kept secrets which harm us by that very fact. Thus comes the saying, "We're only as sick as our secrets." Too many have held secret shame or considered our issues too strange or too personal to tell anyone. The aloneness, the estrangement can't help but hurt us. Getting it all out and being accepted regardless is a huge release for many of us.

In Steps 7 - 10 we become fully willing to amend our ways. We let go of our defects one day at a time, humbly asking for help to remove them, committing to righting our wrongs and making amends to those we have harmed including ourselves as appropriate. We get into service as soon as we're able, helping others to this new path of life so they too can enjoy more serenity, truthfulness, love and joy in their lives. Sharing these steps and helping the process along is vital in our own learning and growing, and staying active in self-growth and the path of the Truthful Heart.

The heart of these steps is in the principles. As soon as we've made a good start with them, we're able we begin helping others to this new path of life. This helps us keep on and grow in the path as well as passing on what's so freely given so that others can also enjoy more of this healing. Stepping into our new, serene way of life, we continue practicing these principles in daily connection with small meditations, quick turn-around methods, stock-taking, accountability and prompt amends.

We don't do any of this alone-- having help from another who has done the steps helps us separate out what may be helpful from the harmful. Our ongoing truthful inventory and dailies may include questions to help bring our thinking and values into line with healthy thinking and our world, ie.: "What feels true to me?" "On what basis do i believe this?" "Is it true?" " How do I live my life in regards to that-- or not?", "How can I change this?", etc. Our Daily Plan for may include specifics such as abstinence from problem behaviors or ways of thinking. We may substitute positive activities, re-programing ourselves through better attitudes and ongoing practices such as 10X Joy check- ins, meditation, gratitude, self- nurturing and the like.

The key to self-mastery is "self- forgetting" but first we must remember the truth of our essence and of the Source within which answers are held. Our inner explorations are never fully done. There is always room for growth, and in this our hearts are truly filled. "Progress, not Perfection" is our credo.

Start with a few Quick, Happy Tips

- For a healthy happy life, value and take time for simple pleasures, for love and having fun.
- Supportive, caring relationships matter and build health and happiness.
- Be kind and gentle to yourself, especially so in hard times.
- Take care of your mind & body needs and inner balance-- being happy helps you do this.
- Learn to forgive-- and especially to forgive yourself!
- * Take a kindly view of yourself and others, kind in self-talk and action.
- Ask for help if you need it, give and get support-- we all need it!
- Authentic happiness includes giving-- Learn to give in balance with your life.
- Learn to listen to what you need, to balance work, service, play, love and relationships.